One of the great features of cedar, however, is it's easy to cut, saw, nail and glue. Do-it-yourself cedar siding is easy to do for those reasons, plus you're installing one relatively small piece at a time, rather than large, bulky sheets that are awkward to handle and install. Cedar siding is available in a variety of styles.

Do-it-Yourself Cedar Siding - Extreme How To
Cedar is soft. Unless the cedar has deep scratches, gouges or planer marks -- lines running perpendicular across the grain -- cedar should be sanded by hand. Power sanders remove material fast, almost too fast for finish work. If you do need to sand it with a power sander, use an orbital sander with 100-grit sandpaper.

For refinishing, especially, hand-brushing is always preferred. If one chooses to spray the paint on the cedar, the best results will be achieved by back brushing the finish during application. With a porous material like cedar, the main idea is to apply a greater quantity of paint to the wood, and hand-brushing is the best way to accomplish this.

Cedar shakes are still made by hand, though of course there is a lot of machinery involved as well. Wood splitters cut and split up logs, and skilled handlers move the pieces through a series of cuts to ensure quality. Due to their rough-cut look, cedar shakes are an excellent choice for any rustic-style house. They are equally at home on ...
