Wolf Hall: Home of the Seymours. The Seymour's main residence was at Wolf Hall; it was here that Jane Seymour (third wife of Henry VIII) was born. There is very little left of the building that was inhabited by a rising family that would become a powerful fraction at court. But the Seymour family left Wolf Hall and no longer lived there in 1575 - instead the estate was used to house servants until it could no longer be inhabited at all.

The Times of the Tudors: Wolf Hall: Home of the Seymours

Although most of us know the Seymours rose to prominence in Tudor times, I was expecting more about the 'Seymours of Wolf Hall'. The early members of the family are pretty much skated over in chapter one and the post-Tudor Seymours are dispatched in one almost 'after-thought' chapter.
